refuse to eat and begin to look thin and pale, the wise mother resorts at once to Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites. She knows they will take it willingly, for there is no bad taste of the oil about it, and it will not make them sick. Soon their appearance tells the cheering story of returning health. They grow bright, active, plump and hungry; they eat anything now. With babes in arms it is just the same. Nourishment! That's the secret of Scott's Emulsion.

Pioneer Library. Regarding the appropriation in tavor of the Pioneer library, the finance committee reported in favor of cutting it off and giving the library, rooms with light and heat, in the joint binding, at the pleasure of the council. Adopted.

The report of the license committee granting Sells & Renfrew a license for a circus on Pioneer square for three days at a rate of $100 for the first day and $59 each day thereafter, called forth another discussion in which Mr. Clawson made the declaration that he did not want the circus here any way, while Cohn pleaded for it. "Let's have the circus." We will have it, the report being adopted.

Liquor licenses were granted to Paul Beun, Frank Smith, Mulvey & Co., M. E. Mulvey & Co., Barnhardt & Stahl, Wilson & Busby.

Liquor licenses were granted to Paul Beun, Frank Smith, Mulvey & Co., M. E. Mulvey & Co., Barmhardt & Stahl, Wilson & Busby.

When the report of the fire department was presented Mr. Clawson moved that inasmuch as the chief had shown that the amount expended was within the allowance made by the council, that the fire and police committee be instructed to report on the advisability of making a reduction in the amount of the limit. The motion prevailed.

Mark Ridell was granted permission to pile building matterial at 27 East Third South street.

Appropriations amounting to $5.310.85 were passed and the council adjourned.

Counties Galore.

Goodwin said that this system of county representation would place too much power in the hands of the legislature which can carve out counties without number and so make worse the jealousy between various regions. A man from Missouri says he is from Posey county or someone from Kentucky will place his county to the front. This has been fostered by county representation. States and counties are two different things.

Anderson, of Beaver, said county representation was just.

Anderson, of Beaver, said county representation was just.

Varian showed that Crane had not been correct in his statements about several of the state constitutions, He showed New York, Wyoming, Montana and Washington, where the provision is not the one proposed by the committee. He believed a great many more such instances could be found. He asked where the right of representation came in when the members on the floor were to be shut off because the committee had considered the question. How many were in the committee? He held out a warning against putting this provision changelessly in the organic laws. Population is always shifting in the west, and whole counties may go down. If counties are to be given representation, why not cities? They bear practically the same relation to the state as do the counties. Sovereign states do not derive their being from the tically the same relation to the state as do the counties. Sovereign states do not derive their being from the federal union. States admitted must be so with the consent of the people of the United States. But once in it becomes a separate autonomy and the federal power does not extend farther than the constitution will allow. Counties are not separate autonomies. They can be changed, created or wiped out by the legislature. There is no analogy. The apportionment as reported would not be touched. It was only the principle of binding future legislatures that he objected to. The power of fixing representation

Van Horn Tries Again.

Van Horn offered an amendment to confine the representation to counties as at present, and prevent the making of new counties and cutting down the representation of the populous districts.
He argued the question, and when he finished at 5.35 the convention adjourned.

CONVENTION CHAT.

The brilliant system of saving money in this convention was aptly shown in yesterday's minutes. There were seven pages of printed matter. Of these over three pages were devoted to motions which were lost. This, of course, is very good for the members, as it gives them a record on the minutes. But as the stenographer takes down everything, no matter how good or bad, how relevant or irrelevant, how material or immaterial, it is quite difficult to see the necessity of giving anything more than affirmative action in the minutes.

Came to the Resene-A Photograph Taken at the Fort By the Beam of the Search Light.

The search-lights of the Old Dominton Cigarette company, which have been attracting so much attention lately, were put to a new use last night. By means tracting so much attention lately, were put to a new use last night. By means of the hellograph and the Morse code, a conversation was carried on between those on the roof of the Templeton hotel and the people at Fort Doughas. The success was so marked that the experiment will probably be repeated tonight.

Manager Turk says that while they were in Denver signaling was carried on with a party on Pike's Peak, sixty-eight miles away, by means of a large mirror. The signal corps at Fort Douglas heard of this and arranged that an experiment should be tried last night. In consequence a detachment of the corps went on the roof of the Templeton, and while the smaller light was turned on them the larger one was turned in the direction of the Fort.

The detachment from the Fort was accompanied by several of her signal corps of the militia. All were arxious to make the experiment a success, and the attempts to get the hellograph in operation were watched with anxious expectancy. However, trial after trial resulted only in failure. A reflection from the Fort could be seen, but nothing intelligible could be seen from the hellograph of the Signal corps of the National Guard, volunteered his services to send and read messages and a shut-off was placed on the large light. With this the Morse code, with its dots and dashes, was run off. It took a great while to get the hellograph at the Fort properly focused, but at length there was an answering flash from the mirror and then the messages began traveling rapidly buck and forth.
